Social networking, blogging, vlogging, gaming, instant messaging, downloading music and other content, uploading and sharing their own creative work: these activities made possible by the new digital media are rich with opportunities and risks for young people. This report, part of the GoodPlay Project, undertaken by researchers at Harvard Graduate School of Education's Project Zero, investigates the ethical fault lines of such digital pursuits. The authors argue that five key issues are at stake in the new media: identity, privacy, ownership and authorship, credibility, and participation. Drawing on evidence from informant interviews, emerging scholarship on new media, and theoretical insights from psychology, sociology, political science, and cultural studies, the report explores the ways in which youth may be redefining these concepts as they engage with new digital media. The authors propose a model of "good play" that involves the unique affordances of the new digital media; related technical and new media literacies; cognitive and moral development and values; online and offline peer culture; and ethical supports, including the absence or presence of adult mentors and relevant educational curricula. This proposed model for ethical play sets the stage for the next part of the GoodPlay project, an empirical study that will invite young people to share their stories of engagement with the new digital media. Enola Hudson:

As a pupil exactly feel bored for you to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library in order to make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's heart and soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the trainer want, like asked to go to the library. They go to presently there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that studying is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful pics on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important for you. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever we want. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country.
