Joe's the reason the word sexy was invented.

Four weeks ago, I'd never kissed a guy; now I'm dating Joe. We grew up on the same street, been friends forever. And I've had a crush on him for years before I plucked up the courage to let him know. He's my first everything!

Who keeps their boyfriend in the closet these days?

I want the world to know how much he means to me. The guys in the team—I play amateur football in the Working Men's League. I'm an apprentice plumber but can't imagine being out at work. No one gets fired for being gay any more, do they?

I'm a grown man.

I'm twenty, I drive, I have a job. A young man, it's true, still got my own hair and teeth but definitely a six foot adult. But on the inside, I feel like a little boy who might have his toys taken away and be sent to his room. At times, I want to run to my bedroom and hide under my duvet for the rest of my life.

I'm going to come out, but not today, I can do it next week.

***An upbeat, first love, gay romance, coming out story. With very little angst (honestly, just a tiny smidgen) and a happy ending.***

***Can be read as a stand alone or directly following on from Streets Apart ASIN: B01C4HOE44.***
