Life with a Lovable Terrorist: How to Treat Dog Behavior Problems Henry Askew

This book presents scientifically sound advice on what owners can do to eliminate their dog's behavior problems. Individual chapters are focused on several types of aggression towards family members, visitors in the home or strangers on the street, aggression towards other dogs, loss of housebreaking habits, other types of urination or defecation problems in the home, fearfulness, destructiveness or barking/howling when left alone, excessive barking in other situations, disobedience and other types of misbehavior during walks, excessive pushiness or pestering, and odd obsessive or "neurotic" behaviors. Each chapter begins with an entertaining description of one of the author's most humorous, touching or bizarre cases involving this type of problem.
